JEFF TEDFORD

Fresno State ('83) • Fifth Season at Cal

It would not be an overstatement to refer to California's football renaissance over the past four years as one of the most impressive turnarounds in college football history.

The Golden Bears were just 1-10 in 2001 and by 2004 had reached the top five in the Associated Press poll. California's attendance has jumped from approximately 33,000 fans per game in 2001 to more than 60,000 each of the past two seasons.

The Bears have played in three bowl games in the last three years after playing in four bowl games the previous 22 seasons.

In short, California emerged into an overnight success while at the same time establishing itself as one of college football's most consistent winners. And that ride started on Dec. 12, 2001, when Jeff Tedford was introduced as the school's 32nd head football coach.

In four years, he has led Cal to a 33-17 record following a period in which the Bears had won a total of 13 games over four years. He has led Cal to three straight bowl games for the first time since the 1948, 1949 and 1950 seasons. He has completely reversed a seven-game losing streak to rival Stanford and transformed it into Cal's first four-game winning streak in the series since the 1930s. Ditto the series against conference-rival Washington. He is undefeated against the Huskies despite inheriting a 19-game losing streak in the series.

The list gets longer and Jeff Tedford appears to just be getting started.

Considered one of the brightest coaching minds in college football today, Tedford inherited a 1-10 football team from the 2001 season, and has directed the Bears to a stunning turnaround that has included four straight winning seasons in Berkeley for the first time since 1948-52. In those four seasons, he has twice been honored as the Pacific-10 coach of the year, becoming the first Cal coach to win the award twice. One of six finalists for the 2004 Eddie Robinson National Coach of the Year Award, Tedford was rewarded with a new five-year contract by Cal on Dec. 6, 2004.

The 2005 season saw Tedford guide a youthful group of Bears through a rash of injuries to an eventual 8-4 record and a 35-28 win over Brigham Young in the Pioneer PureVision Las Vegas Bowl. Along the way, Cal recorded a fourth consecutive upper-division finish in the Pacific-10 Conference and may have set the table for even bigger things in 2006.

Despite the 10-1 regular season of 2004, Tedford's 2005 coaching effort may have been his most impressive since arriving in Berkeley. Due to injuries, he juggled quarterbacks, running backs, receivers, offensive and defensive linemen almost from the opening whistle of 2005. The Golden Bears once again boasted a solid offensive unit, ranking ninth in the nation in rushing and a rebuilt defensive unit showed tangible improvements on seemingly every snap. In all, the 2005 season may have convinced everyone that Jeff Tedford's Bears may just be around the top of the college football world for awhile.

In 2004, California chiseled out the best regular-season record at the university since Pappy Waldorf's 1950 team registered a 9-0-1 mark. Tedford's Bears were the only team in NCAA Division I-A to rank among the nation's top six in final regular-season rankings in both scoring offense (sixth at 37.3 points per game) and scoring defense (fourth at 13.4 points per game), while his offensive unit was one of the most balanced in the country, averaging 256.8 yards rushing and 235.7 yards passing.

In his first season at the helm, he won Pac-10

Coach of the Year honors for guiding Cal to its first winning football season (7-5) in nine years and tying for the nation's biggest one-year turnaround of 2002 (an improvement of 5.5 games).

In 2003, he may have even exceeded his first-year performance. That '03 club, which tied with Florida and South Carolina for the fewest returning starters (nine) in NCAA Division I-A football, had been picked to finish eighth in the Pac-10 preseason conference media poll. Tedford, instead, guided his Bears to a 5-3 third-place showing in the Pac-10, including victories over then-No. 3 USC, Arizona State and Washington - schools that were predicted as the top three conference finishers in that same preseason survey. The 5-3 mark was the best conference record by a Cal team in 12 years, while the Golden Bears' 8-6 overall record produced the most victories by the school since 1993. The Bears capped the 2003 season by posting the team's first bowl win in 10 years, a 52-49 thriller in the Insight Bowl over a Virginia Tech team that had been ranked No. 3 nationally at midseason.

Yet, Tedford's accomplishments during his first two years in Berkeley just set the table for the 2004 Holiday Bowl march. He created a team that earned the school's highest national ranking (No. 4) since 1952 and registered its best regular-season record (10-1) in 54 years.

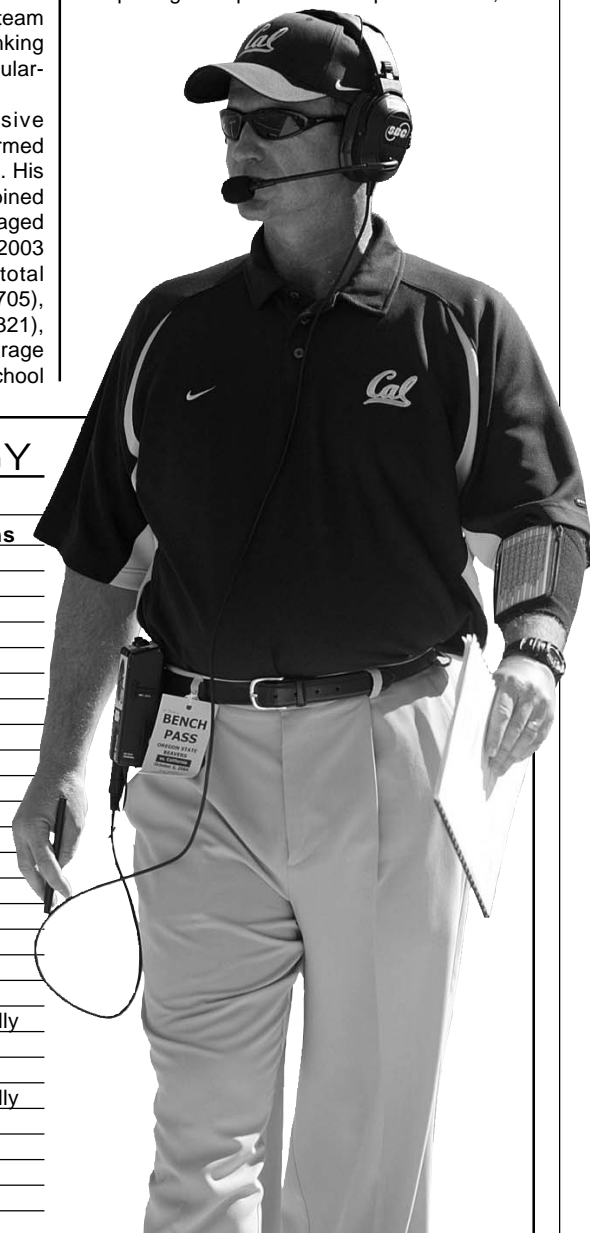

As one of college football's offensive masterminds, Tedford has rapidly transformed the Golden Bears into a scoring juggernaut. His 2002, 2003 and 2004 teams scored a combined 1,685 points. His four Cal teams have averaged 34.4 points per game. What's more, the 2003 Bears set school season records for total offense (6,061 yards), passing yards (3,705), pass completions (278) and first downs (321), while the 2004 Bears posted the highest average in total offense (492.4 yards per game) in school history. Although known nationally as a quarterbacks guru, Tedford has coached at least one, 1,000-yard rusher in each of the last seven seasons, including all four years in which he has been a head coach.

Although Tedford's four-year ledger at Cal is impressive, those in the know realize his record could be even better. Eight of the Bears' 16 losses the past four years have been decided by a combined 30 points.

Prior to his arrival in Berkeley, Tedford was a highly regarded offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at the University of Oregon, where the Ducks finished ranked No. 2 nationally in 2001.

During his 18-year coaching career at California, Oregon (1998-2001), Fresno State (1992-97) and the CFL's Calgary Stampeders (1989-91), Tedford devised record-setting offenses at every stop. Under his tutelage, such quarterbacks as Trent Dilfer, Akili Smith, Joey Harrington, David Carr, Kyle Boller and Aaron Rodgers blossomed into first-round NFL draft picks. His latest pupil was Rodgers, who ranked No. 8 nationally in passing efficiency in 2004, completing 66.1 percent of his passes for 2,566 yards and 24 touchdowns with only eight interceptions.

A proponent of a balanced attack, Tedford's teams are becoming notorious for their ferocity on the ground. In 2004, J.J. Arrington broke Chuck Muncie's school season record with 2,018 yards, which ranked No. 1 in the NCAA. In 2005, sophomore Marshawn Lynch's 1,246 rushing yards were the third best in Cal history. His understudy, Justin Forsett, ran for 999 yards.

Tedford led his first Cal team to a brief No. 23 national ranking (Associated Press) after the Bears' 46-22 upset win at No. 15 Michigan State in the third week of the season. It marked the first time Cal had earned a Top 25 ranking in six years.

In both 2004 and 2005, Cal ended the season in the AP top 25, marking the Bears' first successive appearances in the AP's final vote since the 1950 and 1951 Rose Bowl teams.

Tedford played an integral role on Mike Bellotti's staff at Oregon during his four-year tenure in Eugene - a period in which the Ducks posted the Pac-10's best record of 38-10 while finishing progressively better each year (8-4 in '98, 9-3 in '99, 10-2 in '00 and 11-1 in '01).

In 1992 as quarterback coach at Fresno State, Tedford began honing the skills of future Super Bowl champion quarterback Trent Dilfer. Under his guidance, the Bulldogs' quarterback earned first team All-WAC honors for an offense that led the nation in scoring (44.2 points per game), ranked second nationally in total offense (541.9 yards per game) and beat USC in the Freedom Bowl. A season later, Tedford moved up to offensive coordinator, and Fresno State ranked third nationally in scoring and total offense in earning an Aloha Bowl invitation. Dilfer ranked expectations. Jeff taught me more about toughness and the game of football as any coach I've ever played for, and I've had some awfully good coaches. To this day, I still consult him on all major issues that I'm facing in football."

Tedford made an immediate impact in Oregon when he joined Bellotti in 1998. That first season as offensive coordinator, the Ducks set school records in passing yards (3,856), total offense (5,795) and points scored (473). Tedford's passing acumen was clearly evident in the rapid development of Smith, who earned Pac-10 Offensive Player of the Year accolades in finishing second in the nation in passing efficiency and later being chosen third in the 1999 NFL Draft by Cincinnati. That '98 Oregon club ranked seventh in scoring and "I believe Jeff's one of the finest minds in all of football. He's certainly the finest coach I've ever been around. He's a great leader and great teacher. He has very high expectations for himself and the people around him. And he will work tirelessly to meet those expectations."

first nationally in passing (173.1 rating) and won the WAC Offensive Player of the Year award, and the Bulldog signal caller later was chosen by Tampa Bay with the sixth overall selection of the 1994 NFL Draft.

"I believe Jeff's one of the finest minds in all of football," said NFL veteran Dilfer. "He's certainly the finest coach I've ever been around. He's a great leader and great teacher. He has very high expectations for himself and the people around him. And he will work tirelessly to meet those 10th in total offense nationally, appearing in the Aloha Bowl.

Duck quarterbacks A.J. Feeley and Harrington combined to pass for 3,131 yards and 24 TDs on the Sun Bowl champion team that ranked 13th nationally in scoring in '99, while the 2000 team tied for the Pac-10 crown and defeated Texas in the Holiday Bowl. His last Oregon squad, which bagged wins over Colorado, Washington State,

CAL ACCOMPLISHMENTS UNDER JEFF TEDFORD

- Named Pacific-10 Coach of the Year, the first time a Cal coach had received the honor more than once in his career.
- Earned Cal's highest national ranking (No. 4) in 52 years.
- Posted school's best regular-season record (10-1) since 1950.
- Became first Cal coach in 55 years to win three straight Big Games vs. Stanford (41-6, 2004; 28-16, 2003; 30-7, 2002).
- Registered third straight winning season, first time at Cal since '52.

- Led Pac-10 in rushing (256.8 ypg) for second straight year, first two times since 1958.
- Allowed fewest points by Cal defense since 1968, ranking eighth nationally at 16.0 ppg.
- Recorded first back-to-back defensive shutouts in 36 years (38-0 at Arizona, 27-0 vs. Arizona St.).

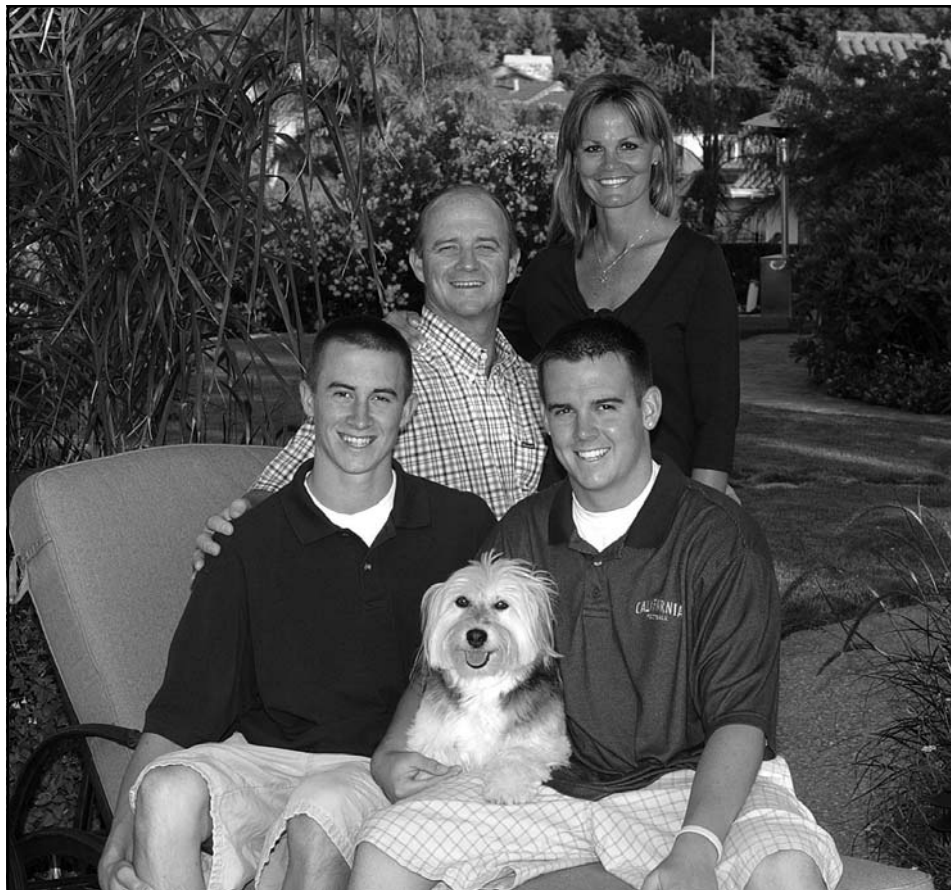

UCLA and Wisconsin en route to a No. 2 ranking, showcased one of the nation's premier quarterbacks in Harrington, who won Pac-10 Offensive Player of the Year honors and a fourth-place finish in the Heisman balloting.

Tedford also enjoyed a remarkable playing career, both on the collegiate and professional levels. During his days at Fresno State, he established several passing records, including career marks for passing yardage (4,872) and touchdown passes (35), while earning honorable mention All-America notice in 1982 when he set school standards for yards passing (2,993) and TD passes (24).

After receiving a B.S. degree in physical education from Fresno State in 1983, Tedford played pro football in the Canadian Football League for six seasons with Hamilton, Calgary, Saskatchewan and Winnipeg. He completed 54 percent of his passes during his career, appearing in the league's championship game with Hamilton in 1984.

Tedford's coaching career began as a volunteer assistant at Fresno State in 1987, spending two years there before joining Calgary in the CFL in 1989. He served as an offensive assistant with the Stampeders for three seasons, including the 1991 team that advanced to the Grey Cup title game.

Born Nov. 2, 1961, in Lynwood, Calif., Tedford grew up in Downey, Calif. He attended Warren High School in Downey, and Cerritos College. He and his wife, Donna, have two sons, Taylor (19) and Quinn (17). They live in Danville, Calif.
