HAAS PAVILION

After each home meet, Cal gymnasts sign autographs and meet with fans at Haas Pavilion.

million to get the project underway. Cal alumni supported the renovation in an unprecedented manner, as $41 million of the final price came from private gifts. The other $16.5 million came from a combination of revenues from the Athletic Department, a campus seismic safety fund and miscellaneous income funds.

The home of California women's gymnastics is Walter A. Haas Jr. Pavilion – an 11,877-seat, state-of-the-art arena that stands on the same site as beloved Harmon Gymnasium. Renovated from the original structure that was erected in 1933, Haas Pavilion also serves as the home floor of the Golden Bear men's and women's basketball, volleyball and men's gymnastics teams.

The $57.5 million facility opened in the fall of 1999 and seats twice the capacity of its predecessor. The structure is 37 feet taller and 28 feet wider than Harmon, but continues to keep fans near the floor and close to the action.

Haas Pavilion is very much an assertion of Cal's commitment to athletics—from the administration and faculty, down through the alumni who made the entire project possible.

The arena became a reality when Walter A. Haas Jr. '37, and his wife, Evelyn, generously donated $11

Karissa Chock (2001-04) holds numerous California top all-time marks.

GOLDEN BEAR RECREATION CENTER

Situated in the hills above the California campus and overlooking the Bay Area, is the Golden Bear Recreation Center, the training facility of the Cal women's and men's gymnastics teams. The building houses ample amenities, resources and equipment to accommodate the progress of Golden Bear gymnasts. The GBRC is also the home to Golden Bear Gymnastics, a recreational and instructional training program for aspiring gymnasts.
