2003 SEASON OUTLOOK

Cal Hopes to Be in NCAA Title Mix

The California women's golf team is the real deal.

With each tournament win and each record set, fewer people are surprised by the success of the Golden Bears. Since the program's inaugural 1995-96 season, Cal has taken strides towards proving its place on the national scene. The climb started with its first NCAA regional selection in 2000 and has continued with back-to-back appearances at the NCAA championships. After placing 19th at the 2001 NAAs, Cal improved to 15th last season.

The program has won 10 tournaments all-time with five of them occurring in 2002. The Bears won three of their four fall events, including a three-peat at the Oregon State Invitational, a title at the nationally-loaded Stanford Intercollegiate and an 18-stroke victory at Hawaii's Kent Youel Invitational. The Hawaii title also saw the team set new school records for 36 (581) and 54 (870) holes.

If Cal can consistently shoot low scores, head coach Nancy McDaniel feels her squad has the experience to handle the pressure of nationals and challenge for the national title. Add those factors to Cal's depth and anything is possible.

"We have seven players who are all averaging under 77," said McDaniel, the 2002 NGCA West Regional Coach of the Year. "This depth is rare on any team. It keeps the Bears on their toes within the team framework, and that in turn translates into a very strong team when we hit the road. That's valuable."

Heading into the spring, Cal is averaging 295.2 strokes per round, which is on pace to level last season's school record of 299.3. Since the team's inception, the Bears have cut 38.3 strokes off their team average. After the fall season, the team ranks No. 2 nationally for score vs. par (6.17), according to Golfstat.

Cal's roster is stocked with experience with five seniors, three juniors and two freshmen. While competition is fierce each week for spots on the travel squad, seniors Vikki Laing and Ria Quiazon are unquestionably the team's leaders. Laing, a 2002 first team All-Pac-10 pick, and Quiazon, a 2002 all-region honoree, posted the squad's top two fall stroke averages at 73.6 and 74.1, respectively. The duo combined for five Top 7 finishes, with Laing posting three of them.

Both have recently competed at international competitions – Laing on Great Britain and Ireland's Curtis Cup team and Quiazon for the Philippines at the Asian Games.

"Vikki and Ria are two outstanding leaders for different reasons," said McDaniel. "That gives us the whole package. Ria has great wedge play. She's a very organized and precise player. She uses smart strategy on the course. Vikki has incredible length and is one of the best athletes I've ever coached. From both of their games, you can draw a lot. They will in turn mentor our freshmen and make them part of a championship team right away."

Juniors Sarah Huarte, Claire Dury and Anna Temple are regular contributors to Cal's lineup.

Huarte, a 2002 first team All-Pac-10 recipient, is arguably the Bears' most steady golfer. She tallied a 75.3 fall stroke average after setting the school season record of 74.5 last year and has posted 42 straight rounds under 80.

"Sarah brings consistency to the program," said McDaniel. "I expect to see a breakthrough from her within the next year. She's always around par, but we'll see her shoot under par more and more with her maturity."

Dury, who is a member of New Zealand's national team, is in her second season at Cal. She posted a 75.3 stroke average in the fall and recorded Top

Ria Quiazon competed for the Philippines at the 2002 Asian Games.

10 finishes at the Oregon State (T10th) and Kent Youel invitationals (T6th).

"Claire was a real shot in the arm for us last year," said McDaniel of one of her three international players. "She played well, filling in the gap when she needed to last spring. However, she has elevated her game to a new level this year, as one of the two players (Vikki Laing) to contribute to each of our three fall wins."

Temple, a Berkeley product, has lowered her average by over two strokes since last season from 78.4 to 76.2.

"Anna is always right there," said McDaniel. "She's one of the hardest working collegiate players I know."

Freshmen Mika Takayama and Sophia Sheridan have played like veterans since arriving on campus. Takayama is from nearby Alameda, while Sheridan comes to Cal from Guadalajara, Mexico. With a 74.6 average, Takayama was the third-best Cal golfer in the fall. She also had two Top 10 results to her credit and never finished lower than 21st. Sheridan, a member of the Mexican national team, averaged 75.4, grabbed fifth at the Hawaii tournament and never placed lower than 29th. Both were in lead groups entering the final round of a fall tournament.

"They are playing some great golf right now," said McDaniel, "especially being so new to collegiate golf. They have adapted wonderfully. They're both different personality-wise, but together form a terrific one-two punch. It's only a matter of time until they finish a tournament on top."

Seniors Rosalin Chung, Amber Reilly and Christine Romer provide depth to a talented Bears' squad.

For McDaniel, the runaway victory in Hawaii epitomizes her team's capabilities.

"There's a real businesslike mood on the team," said McDaniel. "It's an ideal atmosphere in which to coach. There's not a lot of emotional swings you get from less experienced teams. In Hawaii, the last round put an exclamation point on our season, maybe more so than Stanford. We went out and shot another low round and buried the field. That to me is what this team is all about. Cal women's golf is the real deal."

Nancy McDaniel Head Coach • Eighth Year

After leading California to back-to-back NCAA championships, Nancy McDaniel enters her eighth season as the founding coach of the school's women's golf program.

The Golden Bears finished 19th in 2001 at the program's first-ever NCAA championships and followed that performance with a 15th-place showing in 2002.

In less than a decade as a Division I program, Cal has shown dramatic improvement under McDaniel's guidance. The 1995-96 inaugural squad placed 10th in the Pac-10 Conference and wrapped up the season with a 333.5 stroke average. In comparison, the Bears enter the 2003 spring campaign with a 295.2 stroke average and are rated No. 2 in the nation for score vs. par (6.17) according to Golfstat.

The 2001 Pac-10 Coach of the Year and 2002 West Regional Coach of the Year also has coached the Bears to 10 tournament titles, including six in the last two seasons and at three of four events in the fall of 2002 – the Oregon State Invitational (three-peat), the Stanford Pepsi Intercollegiate and the Kent Youel Invitational by a program-best 18 strokes.

One of the most successful players ever to compete at Washington, McDaniel was team captain as a senior in 1988 and earned one All-America and two Pac-10 All-Star team selections. During her career, she won individual titles at the 1987 Washington and BYU tournaments and finished in the Top 10 at seven additional events. McDaniel recorded a 74.3 average her senior year with the Huskies, posting a personal-best round of 69 in the fall of 1987. She was named to Washington's Pac-10 All-Decade team (1986-96) for women's golf and received her bachelor's degree in speech communications in 1988.

McDaniel came to Cal with five years of professional experience on the Women's European, Ladies Asian and Players West golf tours. One of the top players on the Ladies Asian Tour, she finished 13th of 153 participants in 1993 and ranked 20th during her final season in 1994. Prior to that, McDaniel won the Players West title at the 1992 Las Vegas Classic and won the LPGA sectional qualifier in Mission Hills later that year. She currently is a member of the LPGA Teaching Division.

McDaniel spent three years as a touring golf professional, playing out of Brookside Country Club in Stockton, Calif., before accepting the position at Cal in October of 1994. Originally from Portland, Ore., Nancy and her husband, Jay, the head golf professional at Claremont Country Club, have a six-year-old son, Tyler, and a three-year-old daughter, Molly.

2002 SEASON IN REVIEW

The Bears on the Rise in 2002

For the California women's golf team, 2002 was a banner year. In the spring and fall seasons combined, the Golden Bears posted five tournament victories, half of the program's all-time total. The historic year began with back-to-back wins at the Bay Area Classic in February and the Spartan Invitational in March.

The spring culminated with Cal posting all-time best team finishes at the Pac-10 championships (T3rd), NCAA West Regional (3rd) and NCAA championships (15th). The team also achieved an all-time best national ranking of No. 16 by Golfweek. In only their seventh year of existence, the Bears had a lot to be proud of heading into the summer.

Even still, Cal entered the fall campaign feeling like it still had something to prove on the national scene. But after the final fall tournament, the Bears had established themselves as a contender for the 2003 national title. Coach Nancy McDaniel's squad won three of its four fall competitions, beginning with its third straight title at the Oregon State Invitational in September. The run continued with a triumph at the nationally-loaded Stanford Intercollegiate and concluded with an 18-stroke victory at the Kent Youel Invitational.

The Bears were ranked as high as No. 9 by Every Cal team and individual record was broken or tied in 2002, including team marks for 18 (284), 36 (581) and 54 (870) holes.

Several Cal golfers earned honors in 2002. Vikki Laing and Sarah Huarte became the first Cal players to earn first team All-Pac-10 honors, while Anne Walker garnered second team recognition. Walker's career culminated with her earning her third Academic All-America and first team Academic All-Pac-10 selections and the Pac-10 Medal of Honor as Cal's top graduating female athlete. Additionally, Ria Quiazon was selected to the All-West Region team, and McDaniel was named the West Region Coach of the Year.

On the international front, the Bears received two prestigious honors. Laing competed on Great Britain and Ireland's Curtis Cup team in August, while Quiazon was a medalist for the Philippines at the Asian Games in October.

ACADEMIC SUPPORT

One of the real success stories for the University of California in recent years is the development and growth of a comprehensive academic support program for its student-athletes — the Academic Programs for Student-Athletes.

In 1984, campus officials and Athletic Department administrators decided that a greater emphasis needed to be placed on helping Cal student-athletes with their academic pursuits. The Academic Programs for Student-Athletes was thus born and charged with developing an academic support program geared to the needs of NCAA Division I student-athletes. It was a significant development for an academically-oriented institution such as Cal to recognize the special needs required for a modern student-athlete's success both as an athletic competitor and in the classroom.

The Academic Program for Student-Athletes, which is housed under the University's Student Life Educational Development cluster, is the tutorial and academic support program for the nearly 1,000 student-athletes at Cal. Centrally-located in the César E. Chavez Student Center, the program provides a spacious and comfortable arboretum for quiet study, separate classrooms for individual and group tutorials, and a computer lab for word processing and required course work.

Geared around the understanding of the amount of time student-athletes must devote to practice, training, physical therapy and team travel, the program creates an environment where students can cultivate good study habits, receive individual or group tutoring and obtain counseling from academic advisors.

First-year assistant coach Anne Walker received the Pac-10 Medal of Honor last year after her senior season.

The tutorial component promotes and enhances students' academic skills and progress by providing individual tutoring, group workshops, study groups, credit courses and intensive special programs. The program focuses mainly on freshman and sophomores, and the Center uses between 50-60 tutors per semester to guarantee that as many courses as possible are covered. Tutorial sessions are also offered at night enabling student-athletes to receive help after practices when they have more time to devote to studying.

The advising component offers a broad range of services and programs to meet the unique needs and bipolar demands of student-athletes, including assistance in understanding and complying with University, college and NCAA rules, developing time management skills and resolving personal issues unique to student-athletes. During the freshman year, advisors typically try to help student-athletes make a successful academic transition from high school, while during the sophomore year, they assist student-athletes in making decisions on appropriate majors and fields of study. For the final two years, advisors take more of an exiting approach, ensuring that proper academic progress is being made and referring juniors and seniors to areas on campus that can help with internships, graduate school applications and career planning.

In addition, the Academic Program for Student-Athletes offers a six-week Summer Bridge program designed to help ease the transition from high school to college.

Because of the overall success of its advising and tutorial programs, the academic performance and graduation rates of Cal's student-athletes have improved significantly.

Cal women's golfers are well prepared for life after graduation regardless of their interests. For example, Eden Anderson (class of '00), a Phi Beta Kappa honoree, is currently attending Cal's nationally-renowned Boalt Law School and Annie Donnelly (class of '99) is enrolled at USC's School of Dentistry.

STRENGTH & CONDITIONING

An integral part of the athletics department at the University of California is the strength and conditioning program. Jocelyn Forest works closely with the women's golf program. The program's overall philosophy is geared towards helping each student-athlete achieve the highest level of athletic development.

The Cal golf team is immersed in a regimen that is customized to meet its needs. The program utilizes a combination of medicine ball, physioball, and balance bar exercises to develop each athlete's balance, stability and flexibility. These areas are important to the improvement of the power and range of a golfer's swing and the prevention of injuries.

Golfers are tested for their range of stretching. Forest then designs a corrective stretching program and monitors each athlete's improvement.

"Our golfers benefit from a cutting-edge strength and conditioning program," said Cal head coach Nancy McDaniel. "Through the use of plyometrics, medicine balls and specific cardiovascular exercises, we have seen the time in the weight room translate into results on the golf course."

Cal features state-of-the-art weight rooms at Haas Pavilion and Memorial Stadium. The newer weight room at Haas Pavilion includes six Olympic platforms, more than 5,000 pounds of Olympic bars and bumper plates, and an array of aerobic and anaerobic equipment. The facility is brightly designed and overlooks Evans Baseball Diamond to the west. The 2000-square foot weight room in Memorial Stadium offers similar equipment and panoramic views of the entire region.

All workouts are closely monitored and designed to help each athlete increase her ability and ultimately perform at her peak.

TEAM BUILDING

The California women's golf team has a tradition of devoting the first weekend of the fall session to team building. The players and coaches retreat to either the mountains of Tahoe, the East Bay Hills, or simply stay around campus and make use of the wonderful sports facilities. The tradition started in 1998 and has become an important part of the season. During that weekend, the team hikes, plays a number of different sports and games, watches movies and eats lots of pizza.

The Golden Bears work with The Todd Company during the retreat. Roland Todd, a former NBA Portland Trailblazers coach, and his wife, Sharon, meet with the team for a five-hour session, helping the team build a solid foundation of commitments. The goals are to create team unity and to quickly integrate the freshmen into the program. The Todd Company has worked with many national championship teams, including the 2002 California softball squad. The group also works with many professional teams and athletes.

"Roland and Sharon help us work on our championship team model, define our goals and commitments, and provide us with techniques to deal with conflict," said Bear senior Ria Quiazon. "They are an essential part of the engine that keeps our team driving forward."

"When we return home from our team-building weekend, there is a strong feeling of confidence within the team," said Cal assistant coach Anne Walker. "We are confident in our friendships, in our commitments and in our ability to win a national championship. It sets the tone for the rest of season."

The team members feel that teamwork is the ability to work together toward a common vision and to direct individual accomplishments toward organizational objectives. The California women's golf team believes teamwork is the fuel that allows common people to attain uncommon results. The team-building weekends and bi-monthly meetings are a time to review our championship team model, which is based around: honest relationships; commitments; leadership; support; straight talk; proactive listening; speedy resolutions; and coaching as the catalyst.

Team building is an essential part of the Golden Bears' program. Working on relationships, integrity and graciousness are as important to the team as working on their own individual skills.

THE UNIVERSITY

The University of California at Berkeley is one of the world's leading academic institutions. The school, known throughout the world as "Cal," is truly a prototype of a contemporary university.

It attracts what many consider the finest applicant pool in the country, generates an ethnically and culturally diverse student population on campus, and provides one of the finest undergraduate and graduate learning experiences in the world today.

The Berkeley campus is renowned for the size and quality of its libraries and laboratories, the scope of its research and publications, and the distinction of its faculty and students. National rankings consistently place Cal's undergraduate and graduate programs among the very best. The faculty includes eight Nobel Laureates, 112 members of the National Academy of Science, 68 members of the National Academy of Engineering, and more Guggenheim Fellows and Presidential Young Investigators than any other university in the country.

The quality of Cal's diverse and independent student body complements the stature of the faculty. More than 31,000 students annually enroll at Cal. Of these, about 22,000 are undergraduates, while about 9,000 are graduate students. Students come to Berkeley from all over California, in addition to every state in the union and more than 2,000 students from 90 countries around the world.

The undergraduate student body can best be characterized by its diversity; there is no one racial or ethnic majority. Students reflect all age groups, and economic, cultural and geographic backgrounds. This dynamic mix produces the wide range of opinion and perspective essential to a great university.

economics and law also rating among the elite programs in the nation. In fact, almost all of Cal's academic programs enjoy superb national reputations, and degrees from the school in whatever discipline carry significant weight in the business or professional community following graduation.

Cal offers a wide arena for academic endeavor and personal growth with more than 7,000 courses in nearly 300 degree programs. Each year, more than 8,000 students receive degrees from the University — about 5,000 bachelor's degrees, 2,200 master's degrees, 800 doctorates and 300 law degrees.

The excellence of the University's intercollegiate athletic program rivals the school's academic reputation as Cal boasts one of the finest all-around programs in the nation. Twenty-six sports — men's and women's basketball, crew, cross country, golf, gymnastics, soccer, swimming & diving, tennis, track & field and water polo; men's baseball, football and rugby; along with women's softball, volleyball and field hockey — are those sponsored by the University. Over the years, Cal has captured more than 46 national team championships, while claiming 101 NCAA individual championships in a variety of sports.

In addition, Cal has a host of other features, including public lectures and concerts, campus-sponsored forums and seminars, clubs and workshops, dramatic presentations, international festivals, art, photographic, design, architectural, anthropological and archaeological exhibits and displays, and dozens of bookstores within one-square mile — all of this making Berkeley one of the most intellectually stimulating communities in the country.
